

Unbiased journalism, not motivated by political agenda, is at risk in this country. This is no more evident than Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary, Stolen Honor, days before the election. This is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation and the limited controls over content now in place.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. They are clearly abusing this privilege by using their control over the airwaves to promote their own political agenda, without truly supporting equal access to the airwaves. What will be allowed next? A skinhead takeover smearing Jews, blacks and anyone else that does not fit with their ideal of perfect humankind? This would not be fair use of the public airwaves anymore than what Sinclair is doing - and if there is no other recourse to prevent such abuse, controls must be mandated.

Thank you.
